ROUSING REPUBLICAN RALLY

Over Three Hundred Citizens Listen Attentively to Speeches on State and National Issues—Much Enthusiasm Shown

A Rousing Republican Rally was held in the town hall last evening, the audience numbering over three hundred voters and ladies, and the speeches were probably the best dealing with politics that have been heard here in years.

The rally started with a band concert given by the Andover Brass Band in front of the hall from seven-thirty until eight o'clock. Inside the hall, the band again played before the gathering was called to order by the chairman, Hon. John N. Cole. After expressing his pleasure at seeing so many of his fellow-townsmen present and at the opportunity offered in again being permitted to address them, he presented Hon. John Jacob Rogers of Lowell as the first speaker.

Mr. Rogers said in opening his remarks that he always felt at home in Andover that he had made many firm friends on his several visits here and that he always welcomed an invitation to speak before an Andover audience. In his speech his must telling blows were directed against the platform adopted by the Democratic party in the campaign of 1912. He analysed many of the planks and pointed out in each case where the Democratic party had not only disregarded their premises but had gone entirely contrary to their pledges adopted in their campaign.

KILLED ON RAILROAD TRACK

Two Employees of the Boston & Maine Railroad Meet Death When Struck By Locomotive Near Harding Street Bridge

Two employees of the Boston & Maine Railroad were killed on the tracks near the Harding street bridge on Wednesday morning, death being almost instantaneous. The men were working on the northbound track and on the approach of a freight train going toward Lawrence they stepped onto the southbound rails. A heavy fog hung over the tracks at the time and hid the approach of a passenger train due at the Andover station at 8:05. It struck both men squarely and knocked them to the side of the rails. The bodies were taken to Undertaker Lundgren's rooms where Medical Examiner Dow examined them and performed an autopsy. The victims were Louis Bergiro, aged 50 years, of Londonderry, N. H., and Frank Welcome, aged 48 years, of Wilson, N. H. The men had been employed by the Boston & Maine Railroad for many years. They had been connected with the Manchester division section men for some time and about 10 days ago they were transferred to the Lawrence division and they were at work making repairs on the tracks with a large gang of men. They were in the tamping gang and said to be capable workmen. Both men were married.

Following the accident, the Andover police were notified and Chief Frank M.

Ships to Carry More Guns

Navy officials anticipate that American battleships authorized next year will be built to carry main batteries of twelve 16-inch rifles as against eight 16-inch guns to be put on the ships for which bids will be opened October 25. Members of the General Board are said to be in favor of radically increasing the size of new battleships in order that the 50 per cent increase in gun power may be attained. To carry twelve 16-inch rifles it has been estimated that the ships would require a displacement of probably 38,000 tons as against the 32,000 tonnage of the four ships to be laid down next year. The first of the larger ships will not be laid before 1918.

The General Board favored four 36,000-ton vessels, carrying 16-inch guns each, for the coming year. The decision of the Department to make them 32,000-ton ships with eight guns each, it is said, came of the desire to hasten construction by reproducing ships of the California and Tennessee type, now building, with only such modifications as are necessary to arm them with 16-inch rifles.

Rumors have reached the Navy Department that Great Britain is building one or more battleships of 40,000-ton displacement. If this is true, these vessels may carry 18-inch main batteries, probably ten guns each of that size. Unless such ships have been projected abroad since the war began, there is nothing afloat or under construction which equals in size and weight of broadside the 38,000-ton vessels under contemplation here.

A City With Two Calendars

Khartum offers, as no other city, the contrast of two religions—that of the mosque and of the cathedral, of the Crescent and of the Cross, the standards of the prophet of Mecca and of our Saviour Jesus Christ. The city has two calendars, dating one from 622 A. D., and one from the birth of our Saviour. Outside of Khartum, in the vast Sudan, Islam still seems to be chiefly a veneer, and the negro blood carries with it a characteristic jovial friendship and responsiveness to kindness; but in Khartum and Omdurman, Islam is stiffening and deepening its grip on the people.

Gordon College and the primary schools connected with it in the Sudan, although they are Mohammedan schools and observe Mohammedan holidays and teach the Koran and Moslem ethics, have nevertheless been a great stimulus to education. The children are eager to learn, and statistics recently gathered show a great increase in the imports of paper and printed matter. In 1914, for example, the total value of books, mostly Moslem, imported into the Sudan was £8062. The following year this had risen to £7714. Only a very small proportion of this consists of Bibles for the British and Foreign Bible Society, or school books for the mission schools. Nine-tenths of it is Moslem literature.—The Christian Herald.

Coastal Steel Plants

In his speech at the recent Harrisburg dinner, Charles M. Schwab, discussing the future development of the steel industry in the United States, predicted that the great plants that will represent the bulk of American steel output will, in the near future, be in the East and not in the Central West. He called attention to the limited nature of the ore supply in the Lakes Region—the main source of supply for steel industries of Indiana, Ohio and Illinois. At the rate that these central deposits are being drawn upon, Mr. Schwab is of the opinion that they will be approximately exhausted within a less period than ten years.

The coastal plants can, at a comparatively low transportation cost, draw upon ore deposits of South America, of Cuba and even of far-away India. The Schwab interests control enormous ore fields from which high grades of ore are obtained in Cuba and Chile. Ore is now being regularly delivered at the Pennsylvania plant from both these sources. The Bethlehem Company, more than a year ago, announced plans for building a fleet of ore ships—ships of larger tonnage capacity than any now in the ore-carrying business. That was before the Bethlehem Company had obtained control of the Pennsylvania and Maryland Steel companies. There has for some time been a fleet of ore ships trading between the Cuban mines and Sparrows Point.

It is not difficult to understand why the big steel corporation headed by Mr. Schwab is proposing to invest $40,000,000 in the development of the Pennsylvania branch. No other of the steel factoring plants of the United States is so advantageously located in respect to water-borne ore as this Penn-Mary spread of blast furnaces, coke ovens and rolling mills. Cheap ore, cheap coal, railroad charges eliminated on American steel products for export trade.—Baltimore American.

Gave Him Away

With the unruffled gaze of youth the small boy faced his teacher. He had told a lie, and she was trying to make him express regret.

But it was not to be done. And who shall blame the boy, for his father was a grocer.

"You know, Archibald," said the teacher, in sad tones, "a lie may be acted as well as spoken. Now, if your father were to put sand in his sugar and then sell it, he would be acting a lie and doing wrong."

"She nearly swooned when Archibald replied, in clear tones: 'Yes, that's just what mother told him, and he said he didn't care a hang!'"—Answers

BOSTON THEATRES

COPLEY

The Henry Jewett Players at the Copley Theatre, will inaugurate their fifth week by presenting "Jim the Penman."

The story of this play is one of absorbing interest. James, alias "Jim" Ralston, a gentleman—and incidentally a master forger of international renown, discovers that he is hopelessly in love with the fiancée of his best friend, Louis Percival. In order to win her from his friend he is forced to employ the utmost means in his power. He is finally driven to the point where he forges a letter—signed by Percival's name, breaking off the latter's engagement with his sweetheart.

The letter has the desired effect—the way is opened up for Ralston and he marries the woman. Sometime later Ralston's daughter (now grown up) becomes engaged to a young man of a noble and wealthy family. Through the pressure of one Baron Hartfeldt "Jim" is persuaded to enter a plan to rob this family of their famous diamonds. This plan is intercepted by a secret agent of the police, Captain Redwood, who also brings about the exposure of "Jim" Ralston. In a very touching scene "Jim" confesses the whole thing to his wife. When the police close in, "Jim" under the excitement of the moment is stricken with heart failure just as his daughter returns from the church happily married.

PLYMOUTH

Marie Tempest, comedienne par excellence and an artist to her finger tips, enters upon the first week of her Boston stay at the Plymouth Theatre, next Monday night, October 30. "A Lady's Name," the vehicle which Miss Tempest has chosen for her appearance in this city, is capital fun. "A Lady's Name" has its one big act, the second. It is a scene below stairs of a bachelor's home, that is at once novel and intensely interesting. The scene is the most amusing of any comedy of recent years has offered us. Mrs. Haines, the cook, has designs on Adams, the butler, herself, and we are led to believe that he has encouraged her hopes. Margaret, the parlor maid, and Emily, the kitchen maid, are also participants in the comedy. To see Marie Tempest, the exponent of polite comedy, cooking a dinner, with the aid of a cook-book, surrounded by kitchen mechanics, who offer her half-hearted assistance, is assuredly one of the most novel conceits in years. The act alone without the brightness and the smart dialogue of the other two, is enough to stamp the play a smashing success. W. Graham Brown and an excellent company of players are instrumental in giving the star efficient support.

WILBUR

Every person in Boston who has not yet seen "Very Good Eddie," the big musical comedy hit of the season now playing at the Wilbur Theatre, is certainly planning to see it. And unless they hurry, they may miss the opportunity of seeing the brightest, smartest and most delightful musical show that has ever come to New England. For only a few weeks remain of "Very Good Eddie" in Boston. Several attempts have been made to extend the Boston engagement, but Philadelphia and Chicago insist on the original New York Company; therefore "Very Good Eddie" must leave the Wilbur soon and proceed to delight the playgoers of the Quaker City and the Western metropolis. "Very Good Eddie" ran at the Princess Theatre, New York, for an entire season, and the reason for its marvelous success is evident to everyone who sees the show at the Wilbur. Matinee days at the Wilbur are Wednesday and Saturday.

SHUBERT

Next week's offering at the Shubert Theatre, will be the Messrs. Shubert's most important new musical production of the season, Clifton Crawford, in "Her Soldier Boy"—with John Charles Thomas and Margaret Romaine, supported by a great company of an even hundred, seen for the second week. The piece is shrewdly called a musical play, for it combines most delightfully the more alluring qualities of both musical comedy and operetta; having the gay fun of the one and the dramatic story, lovely romance and splendid music of the other.

"Her Soldier Boy" is the first joint work of these two leading Continental writers and comes with the prestige of an entire year in Vienna, Berlin and Budapest. This gala American production has scored a veritable triumph in Chicago and Philadelphia, and this limited Boston engagement is an immediate preliminary to its presentation in New York. The Messrs. Shubert have provided a fine supporting cast.

PARK SQUARE

"The House of Glass," Cohen and Harris' great dramatic triumph and one of the few successes of the past New York theatrical season to achieve a season's run in that city, will be the next attraction to come to the Park Square theatre. The piece opens here on next Monday, October 30, for a limited time only, with identically the same great New York cast headed by Mary Ryan and including nearly a dozen other notable performers.

"The House of Glass," is an absorbing drama of contemporary life. The man who lives in the glass house in this instance is a rising young railroad magnate who is unaware that his wife served a year and a half in prison, a decade previously, for a crime which he did not commit, but the circumstances of which were all against her.

A youth in the offices of the railroad has stolen the company's money, and this husband is determined to punish him as an example to others in his employ, even though the strongest social, political and financial influence is brought to bear to persuade him to give the boy another chance. He does finally consent to, but not until, through an exciting chain of circumstances, he discovers that his own wife has been a convict.

Mary Ryan as the persecuted wife, is said to do the best work of her career, and is supported by the cast of well known players who appeared in "The House of Glass" during the year's engagement in New York.

TREMONT

Mrs. Fiske's engagement, now in progress at the Tremont Theatre, in "Erstwhile Susan," promises to be the most successful that she has played in Boston in many seasons.

Those who have seen Mrs. Fiske in the wide range of parts that constitute her splendid repertoire are the most enthusiastic over her impersonation of the whimsical, idealistic elocutionist who strives to uplift the little Pennsylvania Dutch town of Reinhartz Station. The role is one that may be termed "comprehensive" since it affords the actress opportunity for the disclosure of almost every quality of her well-schooled art. At one moment Mrs. Fiske is as emotionally appealing as in "Tess"; the next moment she exhibits the dramatic strength of her "Mary of Magdala," and the next she is possessed of all the breezy gaiety of her "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh."

Madison Corey and Joseph Riter, the new managerial firm under whose direction Mrs. Fiske now appears, have surrounded her with an exceptionally capable company, and the play is mounted with the care for detail and good taste that have characterized all of Mrs. Fiske's productions in the past. The engagement at the Tremont Theatre is limited. The evening performances begin at 8:15 and the matinee performances on Wednesdays and Saturdays, at 2:15.

HOLLIS

Sir Herbert Tree will appear for the last time in Boston in his sumptuous revival of Shakespeare's "Henry VIII" at the Hollis Theatre on Monday night, October 30. On Tuesday night, he will present Shakespeare's comedy, "The Merry Wives of Windsor," with himself as Falstaff, Miss Edith Wynne Matthison as Mrs. Ford, Lyn Harding as Ford, Miss Laura Hope Crews as Mrs. Page, Miss Elsie Mackay as Anne Page, W. E. Anson as Bardolph, Warburton Gamble as Fenton and George Hays as Slender.

Tree's Falstaff is one of his most famous roles. He first acted the part in London in 1890 and has revived it almost every year since that time. He played Falstaff in New York seventeen years ago and revived "The Merry Wives of Windsor" in that city last spring.

Sir Herbert's production of Shakespeare's comedy is conceived and executed on the broad lines of old Shakespearean comedy tradition. His Falstaff is said to be full of mellow, ripe and unctuous humor and he is particularly fortunate, perhaps, in the cast with which he has been able to surround himself for the Boston revival.

Tremont Temple Concerts

All bookings have been completed for the course of six concerts given in Tremont Temple during the coming year. The concerts begin Thursday night, November 23, with an operatic concert in which the artists will be Marcelle Craft, the celebrated soprano of the Munich opera, who is said to be the most artistic singer now before the public. Miss Craft will be assisted by Vera Barstow, the violinist who stands in the front rank of woman wielders of the bow, and Albert Edmund Brown, the New England baritone who is rapidly winning national attention.

The second concert will reintroduce to Boston, Evelyn Scotney, the Australian coloratura soprano who has returned from a triumphal tour of Australia, and Howard White, baritone and interpreter of folk songs. David Hockstein, the celebrated violinist will appear on this program which occurs December 7. Then follow in rapid succession such great singers as Maria Gay, contralto of the Boston and Metropolitan Operas; Alice Nielson, the American prima donna and most successful of all Americans in opera and concert; May Peterson, from the Opera Comique, Paris, declared by French critics to be the greatest Lakme and Manon since Sanderson; Gladys Axman, the German soprano; Edwardo Ballistro the celebrated Spanish baritone; Heinrich Gebhard, pianist, soloist for twenty successive years with the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Ralph Smalley, the best known of American cellists; Guy Maier and Leo Pattison, who give artistic concerts on two pianos; John A. O'Shea, the best known organist in New England, and other distinguished performers. Tickets for the course are now on sale. Prices $2.00, $3.00, $4.00 and $5.00.

A Daughter of the Gods

The success of the long anticipated Annette Kellerman million-dollar film production entitled "A Daughter of the Gods" has superseded all other similar spectacles ever presented. This remarkable picture, which necessitated nearly a year in its making and employing as many as 20,000 people at one time, was presented for the first time at the Lyric theatre, New York, last Tuesday, before an audience that crowded every available space of that popular playhouse. The praises showered upon it by both press and public were of the most glowing kind. Miss Kellerman's performance is one of the big features of the piece and many of her extraordinary stunts are in a great measure superhuman. The picture will be shown at the Lyric for some time to come. Meanwhile William Fox, the producer, is making plans for the early presentation of this supreme spectacle in Boston, where it is destined to repeat its great New York success.

The Movie Ball

Chairman Sam Grant of the executive committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts, under whose auspices the annual movie ball will be given at the Boston Arena on Wednesday evening November 22, reports that he has received assurances from several of the big film producers who have intimated their willingness to furnish every possible assistance in order to make this year's occasion surpass those previously held. While no definite time is formally announced it is believed that the grand march, which will be one of the big features of the evening, will commence at 10 o'clock promptly. This will enable the early presentation of the long list of notable screen artists that will be present.

Don't Give Up the Nickel

One of the offspring of present strained economic conditions is the agitation for a six-cent piece to fit the convenience of traders in things which used to be worth five cents and now are worth 5's.

So far as the consumer is concerned this is playing into the hands of the devil and the price raiser. As long as the last milestone before the dime is the nickel, dealers in five-cent articles which have increased in value will retrench and economize and perhaps reduce the size of that article so that they can continue to sell it for five cents and make a profit. In this way the dealer helps us all to economize. If food articles are reduced—many of us eat too much anyhow. If cigars are reduced—so much less nicotine is not going to hurt anybody.

On the other hand, the six-cent piece will not only relieve the strain on the nickel where it actually exists. It will be a standing invitation to shove up the price of everything that now sells for five cents. With the coming in of the six-cent piece the nickel will, before long, fall into general disuse. Instead of boosting prices by hoarding our coins, why not encourage economy rather by coining three, four and eight and nine-cent pieces?

Use Potatoes in Bread

More general use of potatoes in bread is recommended by the baking specialists of the Department of Agriculture. Bread containing boiled and mashed potatoes was shown through experiments just concluded to be as nutritious as ordinary bread, and to have the quality of remaining fresh longer.

In localities where there is a surplus of potatoes, or where they are cheap, the specialists say, much economy can be practiced at this time by reason of the high price of wheat flour, and that even in localities where the relative market prices of potatoes and flour are such that there is no economy in substituting potatoes for flour, the individual flavor and keeping quality of potato bread should make it desirable as a variant in the family diet.

Potato bread as known in Europe usually is made with potato flour, which is not available in the United States. In their experiments the Government experts baked excellent bread with three pounds of potato and two and a half pounds of flour. Three recipes have been formulated.

Thanksgiving as Usual

Since 1863 the national Thanksgiving has been observed on the last Thursday of November. This year that day ends the month, and enterprising merchants with an eye to the holiday trade, which does not start on its broadest lines until after Thanksgiving, have urged that the yearly feast of gratitude and praise be fixed for this occasion on the third Thursday of the month. It is announced at Shadow Lawn that the President's proclamation will not depart from the usual practice.

Such is the force of custom. New England originated Thanksgiving and for many years upheld it on theological grounds as a rival of Christmas. It had frequent occasion to offer thanks, but the November feast became the principal religious holiday of the year, and in civil war times President Lincoln gave it national sanction. The last Thursday of the eleventh month is not exactly an anniversary, but in spite of the interests of merchants or the preferences of society it can no more be changed than Independence Day can be set back a month to suit the convenience of tourists and owners of summer homes.

We are ruled largely by institutionalism. The holiday trade is a wonderful factor in our national life, but he would be a brave man who undertook to put Thanksgiving aside in its interest.

Wanted—A Commission on Pie

Pie, Common and Preferred, is the greatest "war bride" among the stocks now turning tricks in the vicinity of Wall street.

Pie Common started out in the good old days with four comfortable sections, retailing at five cents each. Then with no change in price the pie was cut into six or even seven sections, sharp at the nose and none too thick between the crusts. Now it has suddenly leaped to ten cents the cut. That is, we now have Pie Common retailing at sixty cents where it formerly sold at twenty cents.

Few stocks have done more for their owners than this. The question might well be asked, "Whither are we drifting?" and if no one else asks it, we will. It is unnecessary in the presence of this numerous and intelligent audience to ask the history of pie in this favored nation. Its origin was in Old England, whose historical and storied "meat pies" are well known to all readers. Taking root in New England, the pie (except mince) lost its meat and took up with the various fruits.

Thus we had the birth of the apple, berry and other pies which flourished exceedingly until they became the breakfast food of genius. Legends have long been forming as to the use of pie as a breakfast food by such great minds as Emerson and Alcott, and of a thousand other lower lights that were burning along the wild New England shores in the Nineteenth Century. (Yes, the metaphor is mixed, but the facts are there.)

So that the advance in pie becomes a matter of serious moment to all who love their country and are interested in her future.

Just whither we are drifting now along the rocky pie counters of this age, it is difficult, through the fog that envelops the subject, to see. It would seem to one on the shore that a National Commission should be appointed to look into the pie.—Minneapolis Journal.

In Return for Navarino

Modern Greece came into being through the action of Great Britain, France, and Russia, whose fleets in the battle of Navarino ninety years ago broke the Turkish power. These three are the Allies who have now recognized the independent Government which Venezuela has set up in Crete. There is no use in attempting to reconcile the recognition of an insurrectionary government with the maintenance of formally proper relations with the government against which the insurrection is directed. By all diplomatic and international precedent the situation in Greece is quite impossible. It is probable that if the removal of Constantine from power could be effected with little trouble, the Allies would not hesitate to effect it. They might claim the sanction of half the nation behind them, and more than that the right of self-defence. There is no doubt the fear of what the Athens Government may do in the rear of the Allied battalions in Macedonia. King Constantine is doubtless the best-informed man in Europe regarding the exact situation on both sides. His firmness in holding out against the Allies must be attributed to exact knowledge he had of the preparation of the great Teuton stroke in Transylvania. That he knows what is going on at Salonica goes without saying. It is to prevent something of this latter information from getting across to the enemy that the Allies have been interfering in the internal administration of the country.—New York Evening Post.

What Two Brothers Did

What entirely different careers different members of the same family sometimes pursue! This reflection is aroused anew by the death of Isaiah Moody, oldest and last surviving brother of the famous evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, at his birthplace, East Northfield, recently, that the latter put upon the map and made the seat of great educational institutions and a yearly conference devoted to religious interests of worldwide reputation.

When Isaiah, who lived to be four-score-and-eight years old, was a boy in early teens his mother was left a widow with half a dozen children and scanty means. Instead of turning to with all his might to help her, the youth shirked his task and ran away from home. On sea and land he spent so many years without communicating with his family that he was given up as dead and gone. The town history so recorded him, but he returned in late middle life to read the record and live it down. While Dwight and the other Moody children were reared by their mother and set on prosperous paths in life the runaway was unheard of.

The career of the great evangelist made his name and that of his Brooklyn co-worker, Ira D. Sankey, household words in all this land and beyond the sea. Dwight Moody returned from his evangelistic tours to East Northfield to make his home and turned the old Moody farm into the grounds of a prosperous girls' school and erected thereon the great auditorium where immense audiences gather each summer.

Near by he founded the Mt. Hermon School for Boys, and Y.M.C.A. camps and conferences are held every season in the vicinity. The sons of the evangelist have carried forward their father's work since his death in 1899, at the age of sixty-two, and it has become so firmly established that it will endure for generations.

Meanwhile, their Uncle Isaiah, who deserted his post in boyhood, in recent years carried on a shop for trunk-mending and odd jobs in the beautiful village with which the family name is so securely identified, and at last the record of the end of his career becomes an accomplished fact. But what a contrast in the two careers!

Infantile Paralysis

If nothing better comes of the scare the general cleaning up of the slums in big towns and cities will stave off many fifth diseases now common here. There is one set of fifth supplies that has been overlooked, it occurs to me. Far away from the reservoirs that supply large town water systems, this long summer which has drained the surface decay and fifth of small water feeders into the main sources of supply, one source of trouble may have been overlooked in the study of causes of poison. My experience in the West where we had to depend on surface water in a deposit of sandy loam thousands of feet deep, with springs like ours here in a clean swept rock bottom handy, very far apart; we had drive wells in one town, two of them; ours had to be locked sometimes in dry weather over night, as the hotel well was inferior in delivery, with a greater demand; locked up that the thirsty horse and traveler could have the usual daily supply as it passed our store, because the neighbors would steal from our well in the night in barrels, if left unguarded. We had cerebral spinal meningitis all around us. Spotted fever, they called it; families who used lake water full of decayed log-bark and town drainings suffered most. Fifty cases down at once, at the next station. It was not thought contagious but came on from a common cause of poisoning, shared by all the drinkers. We had one neighbor up north of us who lived in a swamp with stagnant water in the cellar and a pool from which the house water was taken daily. They lost five of their children. The last was sent away with the mother a bit of a babe on a pillow, by the neighbors to a town up the road. It began to pick up as soon as the cars began to go up grade and survived the attack, being the strongest of the group and the last to succumb.

I have wondered if the foulness of up-country water sources in the excessive washings of the early summer rains may not have something to do with the infantile disease. Men did not suffer as did babes in the cases out west, and only a few women. May not the milk supplies from careless washing of cans from some far distant farmhouse help in many cases to cause an outbreak all at once? In old times, I am told we had the same thing here. It is not new in our section, but as each family had in the ancient wells the supply confined to isolated groups we did not find it contagious or infectious like scarlet fever or the dread throats distemper. It is more, it seems to me, a locality plague like malaria. You have got to live near where it follows you. If it is contagious after it gets a good start, why do we not wash our nickels every day as we did once some years ago in some panic! It would be a good scheme if the whole country would act together and wash the circulating currency every day. Trolley cars, movies, saloons, ice cream parlors, everybody lend a hand. We might thus escape more grave trouble impending from the introduction of foreign and new forms of death ready for us.

C. H. A.

Here is a little skit from Harper's that may be of use to Uncle Sam, to Massachusetts Commonwealth, to C. H. A., and any other friends who feel that they are "doddlers." After the burning of a railroad bridge in Montana, the bridge engineers and staff were rushed to the spot, followed in two days by the division superintendent. He met the old bridge boss with the word: "I want this job rushed. Every hour's delay costs the company money. Have you got the engineer's plans for the new bridge?" Said the old master: "I don't know whether the engineer has the picture drawn yet or not, but the bridge is up and the trains passing over it."

Honduras to Have Good Roads

The Official Gazette (Telugicaps, Honduras) contains the full Spanish text of the law recently enacted by the National Congress which requires male citizens, both nationals and foreigners, domiciled in the Republic, over eighteen years of age, unless specifically exempted, to contribute money or labor toward the construction of public highways in the country. A tax for this purpose is also imposed upon commercial, industrial, mining, and banking organizations or their agencies doing business in Honduras although their legal headquarters may be in other countries. Women whose property amounts to less than $17 and indigent men over sixty years of age are exempted from the provisions of the law. The tax is levied on a sliding scale on property valuation of from $1760 upward.—Bulletin of the Pan American Union.

The Political Situation

The political situation is beginning to show signs of considerable activity. A month ago practically no one appeared to be interested, at least if one might judge from the noise. Today the entire nation is considerably aroused, and in some sections of the country there is a genuine fever of the political variety.

Undoubtedly the difficulty associated with making the people take seriously the problem of choosing a chief executive for a four-year period has been made more difficult this year than ever before in the history of the country, because of the kind of legislation that has been passed during the past four years in most of the states of the Union.

This legislation has pretended to give to the people more power, but the result of much of the foolish attempt to secure direct action by the people has produced the exact contrary effect. People may have the power, but they refuse to be agitated every few months into using it, and there is hardly a single clear-thinking statesman in the country who doesn't believe in his heart, and many of them say openly, that until we return to some sort of system by which action in political matters may be delegated to responsible people, we shall continue to drift into the sort of chaotic condition that we have been seeing during the present presidential campaign.

Now that the fight is really arousing public interest, however, a word on our own local situation is well in order. Sitting at the table in a prominent hotel one day this week, the writer was told by the colored waiter that he "didn't see how there can be a single vote in New England for the Democratic party." This was undoubtedly the sentiment of a man whose race has reason to feel very strongly the treatment it has received from the people of the South, but it also carried at this time a very deep conviction relative to what New England has been getting during the past three and a half years at the hands of the Southern controlled Federal Congress. Senator Lodge has driven this idea home with telling force at every place where he has spoken during the pending campaign. Loyal as he is to the great nation as a whole, he cannot help seeing that New England stands today in the place where she must have a New England spirit aroused, not of antagonism to any other section of the country, but a spirit that stands for preservation of local conditions, local opportunities, and local advantages. This question may call forth sharp criticism of the party in power as it involves Democratic policies and Republican policies, but such criticism is only sound where it emphasizes the application of wrong policies to government.

There is little question but that New England will give the biggest part of its vote to the Republican candidates. There is little question but that the splendid administration of Governor McCall in Massachusetts will give him a very large vote for re-election. There is little question but that the great service to the nation and to the state by Senator Lodge will make the first campaign for popular support in a Massachusetts senatorial contest a memorable one in the size of the vote he will secure. There is little question but that practically all of the Republican candidates locally will be re-elected, and yet it may not be out of place to touch some of these contests a little more carefully.

In the preliminary contest for the Register of Deeds, the opponent for the nomination to the present incumbent, Moses Marshall, took occasion to say some things which he undoubtedly wishes now he had not, because they were only half truths. It was all very well to call attention to the constantly increasing cost of the department, and perhaps for the sake of securing local support, Mr. Marshall's opponent for the nomination was justified in claiming that it was extravagant, but the real facts are that the increased cost of this department is less than the increased cost of everything else that people have to put up with, and a careful analysis of the work of the office shows that Mr. Marshall has made an excellent official. His job is one which comparatively few people have anything to do with, but those few attest to the efficiency of the department and to the service rendered in a way to justify the full and hearty support to the party nominee for this important place. We touch upon this at this time because Mr. Mulholland, Mr. Marshall's Democratic opponent, stops long enough in his task of doing his share as one of the original triumvirate to locate the Andover postoffice where the Andover public doesn't want it, to make some rather vicious and unwarranted attacks upon the office of Register of Deeds to which he is aspiring.

Senator Tetler has an opponent possessing many good qualities, but there would seem to be not the least reason why the great big Republican vote that has gone to Senator Tetler for three years shouldn't make him successful again at the polls.

District Attorney Cox comes up for re-election after a brief term in the office. Anybody who knows him doesn't need to be told that he has made good, and that he will continue to make good, and that the Commonwealth and the district are fortunate in having a man of his ability filling this place. Congressman Rogers is in the house of his friends in Andover. He has grown at Washington in a way to bring a rare satisfaction to his constituency, and his vote ought to be a rouser at the coming election.

The local Representative situation has cleared very satisfactorily. Mr. Gleason seems assured of not only the strong united support of his party in Andover, but of a generous and full-measured endorsement at the polls from the other towns in the district, North Andover and Middleton.

Now while all of this seems good, it should be made more impressive by not only the full measure of endorsement but by every possible effort being put forth to increase the support of those principles upon which New England, Massachusetts, and Andover have thrived, through the biggest vote for Republican policies and Republican candidates that this section has ever known. Andover's part is involved in getting to the polls and getting the right vote cast by 1,600 men registered on the voting list. There is a full ten days still available for busy campaigning, and every Republican should become a campaign committee of one and fill that time with real work.

The Political Issues

We publish a communication in another column from one of those in attendance at the Republican Rally last night, and we are mighty glad to urge our readers to give it careful thought. The young man in question undoubtedly doesn't have to give quite as serious consideration to the phase of the present political situation that was emphasized, as do most of those who were in the audience, and perhaps for that reason he saw the issue that was emphasized in a little different light.

Mr. Thomson's emphasis of the Preparedness issue in his communication, is a welcome addition to the local discussion, but may we suggest that a Nation with such a waste as is noted in the last three years of Democratic demonstration, a Nation with such an economic policy as that which the United States has always had with Democratic rule, a Nation which has been for a number of years breeding extravagances that must come in competition with strict economy in all other nations in the world, such a nation will find itself utterly unable to cope with the other nations of the world in the great struggle that will follow the war, and this applies with greater force to the very issue which Mr. Thomson raises, than to any other problem that will come at that time.

Editorial Cinders

We took occasion to comment, a few months ago, upon the far-seeing citizenship of Reading in voting to acquire a good-sized piece of property in the center of that town for civic development. We are now considerably disturbed about a newspaper story which states that at a special meeting held this week, that action has been rescinded and they are going to sell the property acquired. Great is the annual town meeting, but greater is the special town meeting where lesser interest and fewer numbers give opportunity to one or another of the types of obstructionists who are always on hand to get busy and work out narrow views and personal prejudices. Perhaps this has not happened in Reading, but we bet a cooky it has.

It is good to learn that the case of infantile paralysis at Phillips is progressing favorably, and no new cases have developed.

Seriously Injured

Albert Kimball, a well-known resident of West Parish Center, lies at his home in a critical condition, the result it is believed of a fall from the haymow of his barn, yesterday afternoon. Just how and when the accident occurred is not known by the members of his family and, at the time of going to press, as he had not regained consciousness, nothing could be learned from the victim as to the cause of his unfortunate condition.

From Mrs. Kimball, his wife, it was learned that he had intended to go to Lawrence yesterday afternoon. He went to the barn to harness his horse and it was not until after dark that his body was found on the barn floor by his wife who had gone out to see if he had returned home. He was unconscious at the time he was found and after being taken into the house, Dr. Abbott was called and after an examination, found that he had probably fractured his skull and that his recovery was doubtful.

Mr. Kimball was well known throughout the West district. He conducted a small farm near the center and followed the trade of a carpenter. It was his custom to hitch up his horse and drive to various parts of the town without telling his family where he was intending to go. It was for this reason that Mrs. Kimball did not find her husband until many hours after the accident had evidently occurred. From the position of the unconscious man when found, it is thought that he must have gone into the haymow and slipped from a ladder, landing on his head and shoulders.

Wedding

EDWARD MCKAY

The following, taken from a Stellarton, Nova Scotia, paper of October 12 will be of interest to Andover people as Mr. Saunders has many friends here. He is a son of the late John Saunders, "Ian McDougall".

The marriage of two of Stellarton's popular favorites was celebrated yesterday at 1:30 p.m. when Miss Elizabeth Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. MacKay, MacKay street, and Mr. Harry Greene Saunders were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by their pastor, Rev. C. C. Macintosh.

The bride was for several years a popular and obliging clerk in the store of T. J. Reid, while the groom is employed in the general office of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co., at Trenton and both are extremely popular with their many friends and townspeople generally.

As Lohengrin's wedding march was played the bride entered the parlor, leaning on her father's arm, who gave her away. The parlor was beautifully decorated with palms, autumn leaves and red berries, the work of the bride's girl friends. As the winsome bride took her place, dressed in her wedding gown of white crepe de chine with veil, and carrying a bouquet of white roses, surrounded by the wedding guests, the scene was a beautiful and impressive one.

After the ceremony and congratulations, a dainty wedding repast was served.

The choir of Sharon Church of which Mrs. Saunders has been a faithful member presented her with a silver service. Besides this there were many other gifts of silver, cutglass, linen, etc.

The bride's travelling gown was a tailored suit of blue broadcloth with hat to match.

Midst showers of confetti and hearty good wishes Mr. and Mrs. Saunders left on the afternoon train for Boston, Providence and Andover, Mass., the groom's former home.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Saunders will reside in Stellarton.

Those who attended the wedding from out of town were, Mrs. Seldon Dickson, from Oxford, Messrs. James and David Davidson, Springfield, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Osborne, Mrs. Geo. MacKay and Mr. and Mrs. James Mitchell, New Glasgow.

The Means Wedding

October 14, 1916, at St. John's Episcopal Church, Beverly Farms, at noon, Miss Annie Middleton Means, 2nd, was married to Valentine Worthington of New York city, lawyer, son of Mrs. M. S. Worthington of New York and nephew of Mrs. Carey Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr college. He was educated at Westminster and Oxford, England. The bride is of a well-known old family here, granddaughter of the late William Means, daughter of the late Robert Lawrence Means, was maid of honor, and among Whitman of Andover and after the death of Robert Means she married Arthur Little and at his home in Beverly Farms, at the cottage called "Old School House" a wedding breakfast was served. Her sister, Miss Jessie K. Means was maid of honor, and among the ushers were her brothers, Gordon M. and Robert Whitman Means; also the brother-in-law, Andre Nicholas Reggio, who married her sister, Claire W. Means. They will live in New York City. The account taken from the Saturday Transcript of the 14th had more details. While the elders have long passed from among us, Miss Annie Means, Sr., still represents this universally beloved Means family.

And his big baritone is very impressive in the singing of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," the famous old Civil War song. There's a breadth and resonance to his voice that fits the spirit of the old song to a "T," and the support of the Orpheus singers has added to Mr. Whitehill's fine record.

Gen. Wm. F. Bartlett Corps, 127, held a regular meeting Tuesday evening in G. A. R. hall. Mrs. Mary E. Langdon of Ipswich was present to inspect the work of the corps. In her remarks she complimented the officers upon their work and considered the work fully up to the standard of Essex County Corps which are among the best in the state. She especially made mention of the voting and the floor work of the guard, Mrs. Mears. She found the corps in a prosperous condition and the members working in harmony. Mrs. B. M. Allen had charge of the music which added much to the success of the evening. After the meeting, Ira Buxton, the janitor, was presented with a fountain pen in appreciation of his many acts of kindness. Refreshments were served.

Last Wednesday Mrs. M. Belle Eastman, Mrs. Helen Allen and Mrs. Belle Lindsay visited the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea.

Communication

To the Editor of the Townsman.

Sir:—As I walked down the stairs from the upper Town Hall this evening after being at the Republican Rally, it seemed to me that the men all around me were very quiet. The men who had gathered at the meeting seemed to be going away with the spirit of men who had been taking counsel of their fears, filled with the thought of the hard struggle for existence, of the impending high cost of coal, of food,—with the thought of what Poverty might be like.

As an argument for voting the Republican ticket the Chairman had searchingly put the question to his audience, "Have you made your pile of money?" And insinuated that if a man had not, he would better not have to weather the gale of another Democratic tariff!

The Chairman's query gave the tone of the meeting in a nutshell.

Yo you, my fellow listeners in that audience, if you felt the atmosphere of that meeting as I felt it, I should like to say a word, without any apology, for myself personally: I am going to vote for Hughes and the whole Republican ticket and am going to persuade as many others as possible to do likewise. But I am not going to do that because I went to the Republican Rally and was almost scared to death! I am going to vote for Hughes and the Republican ticket because I believe there are many men like Roosevelt in the Republican party who will come into positions of power, who will be backed up by Republican Senators and Congressmen, and who will express in actions some ideals of freemen (who are not scared to death),—of Americans who do not believe in abandoning their dead,—of Americans who believe in protecting their living,—of Americans who are free to think, and to announce what they think, when they see a small and innocent nation trampled on for military necessity,—who scoff at the injunction of a man "too proud to fight" when he tells them to be "neutral even in thought."

And for other reasons too, but of lesser importance and not worth while arguing about just now.

Your reasons, Mr. Chairman, seemed to be wholly fears of what the Democrats might do to us New Englanders "after the war!"

One man in your audience, Mr. Chairman, feels that some other considerations are a dash more worth while and feels he speaks for others who were there.

Yours very truly

The Andover Musical Clubs will give their first concert at Rogers Hall on December 9. The Rogers Hall Concert is the biggest outside of the Exeter Concert. The Andover Clubs have been going over there for a number of years, and the program has always been a success.

The first meeting of the Technology Club was held last Saturday night in the Peabody House, with informal talks on the different phases of Technology life. The Club was very fortunate in obtaining Dean Burton, of the Institute as the main speaker of the evening. President Russell opened the meeting with a word especially to the new fellows, and a resume of last year's meetings and the speakers which were obtained.

An open meeting of the Society of Inquiry was held Sunday night in Peabody House. It was very informal, and a number of topics such as: Influence of older men on the younger men; School Friendships; The Academy Church; Gambling and Profanity, were discussed.

Stolen Auto Recovered

The overturning of an automobile on Andover hill last Sunday evening was the undoing of a couple of automobile thieves who had stolen the machine in Haverhill earlier in the evening and were headed for Boston when the accident occurred. The auto found belonged to C. G. Turner of Haverhill and was a light touring car.

The local police received a telephone call from the Haverhill police early in the evening informing them of the larceny of two touring cars from the streets in the Shoe city and asking assistance in recovering them.

About 7:30 the Turner auto was found in a field near Phillips Academy. The radiator, lights, mudguards and windshield were broken. Glass was scattered about the ground and some marks of blood were apparent on the dry grass. The thieves had made their escape.

Discovery of the machine led to the conclusion that an auto party had met a tragic end but when the police were acquainted with the finding they immediately got into communication with the Haverhill police and ascertained that it was the Turner auto.

The other auto stolen had 80173 for registration number.

Wedding Announced

Mrs. James Putnam Smith of Worcester announces the marriage of her daughter, Elsie Gorham Smith, to Allan M. McCurdy, on October 21, at the house of her son, Luther P. Smith, 6 Forest street. The wedding is of local interest since the groom and best man, Carl R. Parker, are Andover men. A reception followed the ceremony, with music and dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. McCurdy left after the reception for a trip in the West, and will be at home after December first at 1409 Stephens street, Minneapolis, Minn.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELLEN A. MOORE

Mrs. Ellen Ann Moore, wife of John F. Moore, died at her home, 9 Wolcott avenue, Tuesday, October 24. Mrs. Moore was born April 2, 1848, in London, England. In youth she moved, with her parents to Cambridge, Mass. For nearly thirty-eight years following her marriage, October 4, 1876, her home was at Allston. For the past two years, however, Mr. and Mrs. Moore have made their home with their son, Frederick G. Moore, of Andover.

The home life of Mrs. Moore exemplified to those who knew her, affection and constancy, staunch conviction and a large fund of human sympathy. She knew her Bible—cover to cover—and as a diligent student and disciple she followed its teachings with simplicity. Her home life was peculiarly consistent with her religious faith and the things which were true, honest, pure and lovely were her daily thought. At the time of her decease she was a member of the Andover Baptist Church. Her temperament was one of those happy combinations of good cheer and sunshine which gave those who came in contact with her that comfort and encouragement which made men and women better fitted to cope with their daily tasks. Her life stood for the best.

Mrs. Moore is survived by her husband; her two sons, Frederick G. of Andover and Robert L. of New York; a daughter, Mrs. Albert A. Harris of Springfield; a sister, Caroline Close of Cambridge, and seven grandchildren.

Services conducted by the Rev. William E. Lombard, assisted by Rev. Dr. Joseph E. Perry, a former pastor, were held at the home Thursday afternoon, and interment was in Andover. The bearers were Frederick G. Moore, Robert L. Moore, Albert A. Harris, George E. Close, Burton S. Flagg and Colver J. Stone.

MARY ELIZABETH BLOOD

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Blood, widow of George Warren Blood, died Wednesday morning at the home of her niece, Mrs. Clarence A. Curtis, 69 Park street, after an illness extending over many months. She was born in North Andover, November 6, 1840, and had lived in Andover many years. She leaves five sons: Louis of Salem, Harry of Washington, Roger of Montana, George of Contocook, N. H., and Jasper of New York; one daughter, Mrs. Charles Tyler of Andover; one sister, Mrs. Lauren F. Dearborn, and two brothers, Charles P. and Jasper Rea. Mrs. Blood was a great worker in the North Andover Grange of which she was a member.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at her late home and were conducted by Rev. William S. Nichols, pastor of the Unitarian church in North Andover. Burial was in the family lot in the South church cemetery.

Tendered Party

A party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McGuire of 152 High street in honor of Hartley Calvert who has just returned from the Mexican border with Battery C of Lawrence. Those present: Mr. and Mrs. John McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Towler, Misses Eleanor Emmett, Alice Baxter, Edith Taylor, Jean McDonald, Mildred Towler, Mary Kelly, Ann McGuire, Mary McGuire; Hartley Calvert, Philip Pasho, Alfred McKee, Edward Kerwin, John McGuire, Jr., Thomas Keegan of Lawrence, George Manning of North Andover.

To the Voters of the Fifth Congressional District

By the unanimous Republican vote 'cast in the September primaries I am a candidate for reelection as your Congressman.

I am a Republican because I believe that Republican principles, so often tried in the fires of experience, best ensure the welfare of this district and the peace and security of the nation. Nevertheless, you know that in the innumerable local problems arising while I have been your Representative my service has been invariably non-partisan.

I have sought to make myself personally available at all times to every man, woman and child in the district. In pursuance of this policy I devoted a large part of 1914 and 1915 recesses of Congress to tours of every city, town and post office, notifying every voter in advance when I should be in his vicinity, and inviting him to call upon me for the transaction of Congressional business of whatever kind. In view of the fact that these tours convenience thousands who then consulted me, I pledge myself to a continuance of this policy.

For these reasons, and because I know you will not underestimate the importance of experience in the public service, I ask—whatever your politics—your support on Election Day, November 7.

Before the campaign closes I shall present in these columns, and personally throughout the district, a somewhat detailed report of my efforts in your behalf.

The Boston Store of Lawrence*Abbot Academy Notes

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Ashton gave the school an interesting talk on the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Mr. Henry of Christ Church was the speaker at the Sunday evening service.

Miss Bailey was one of the speakers at a conference of the North Atlantic Section of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae in Boston last Saturday. Her subject was "The Function of the College and the Private School in teaching Good Manners", and considerable discussion was aroused by her talk.

Miss Bailey is very glad to announce that she has arranged for a reading on November 8 by Charles Hann Kennedy—the well-known dramatist—the author of "The Servant in the House", "The Winter Feast", "The Necessary Evil", and "The Idol Breaker". Mr. Kennedy's program will include three dramatic interpretations from the Bible, scenes from "The Servant in the House" and the whole of a more recent play, "The Terrible Meek"—a play which is supposed to be acted in the dark and which has been called the strangest play ever written. It may be interesting to know that Mr. Kennedy is now at work on a new play "The Rib of the Man", which he hopes to have finished before he comes to Andover. The reading will be in Davis Hall at eight o'clock on Wednesday evening, November 8, and the price of admission will be 50 cents.

Celebrated Eightieth Birthday

Mrs. George P. Byington very pleasantly celebrated her eightieth birthday Monday afternoon at her home on High street. A party of thirteen of her young friends was entertained from 4 to 6 o'clock. A track meet was greatly enjoyed and was followed by a Pink Tea, the crowning feature of which was a large and prettily decorated birthday cake surrounded by eighty pink candles burning brightly. Besides the young guests, who were the Misses Margaret and Violet Richardson, Arline Miller, Alice and Barbara Loomer, Barbara Hodgkins, Doris Shaw and Catherine Clemons; and Russell Richardson, Melvin Haynes, Gardner Shaw, Edward Hodgkins, and Edward York, neighbors and friends called to extend greeting. Mrs. Byington was the recipient of many gifts of flowers, ferns, plants, fruit, cards, and other remembrances, including a large bouquet of pink chrysanthemums from the Congregational Ladies' Aid Society. It was a delightful occasion and all her many friends wish Mrs. Byington many happy returns of the day.

Early Smokers

Who smoked the first pipe? Sir Walter Raleigh, of course, most people say, but this seems open to doubt. As G. L. Apperson points out in "The Social History of Smoking," there are several claimants. It has often been stated that Captain William Middleton, of Myddleton, (son of Richard Middleton, governor of Denbigh Castle), a Captain Price and a Captain Koet were the first who smoked publicly in London.

Another Elizabethan who often is said to have smoked the first pipe in England is Ralph Lane, the first governor of Virginia, who returned to England with Drake in 1586. Lane is said to have given Sir Walter Raleigh an Indian pipe, and to have shown him how to use it. The truth probably is that, whoever actually smoked the first pipe, it was Raleigh who brought the practice into common use. Long before his death in 1618 it had become fashionable in the ranks of society. Raleigh is said to have smoked a pipe on the morning of his execution, before he went on the scaffold, a tradition which is quite credible.

In November, 1911, a curiously shaped pipe was put up for sale in J. C. Stevens' auction room, Covent Garden, London, which was described as that which Raleigh smoked "on the scaffold." The pipe in question was said to have been given by the doomed man to Bishop Andrews, in whose family it remained for many years, and it was stated to have been in the family of the owner, who sent it for sale, for some 200 years.

The pipe was of wood, constructed in four pieces of strange shape, rudely carved with dogs' heads and faces of Red Indians. According to legend, it had been presented to Raleigh by the Indians. The auctioneer, Mr. Stevens, remarked that unfortunately a parchment document about the pipe was lost some years ago, and declared, "If we could only produce the parchment the pipe would fetch 500 pounds." In the end, however, it was knocked down at 75 guineas.

Banks and Gold Certificates

The fact that many banks and trust companies are beginning to pay out gold certificates instead of other forms of currency is one more piece of evidence of the abundance of the yellow metal. Indeed, there is no question that the country now has far more gold than it needs. It should be borne in mind, however, that the time is bound to come when we shall begin to lose gold to Europe, owing to the fact that it will command a higher value there than here. In all probability our exports of the metal for months after the termination of the war will approximate the proportions of our imports of the metal during the past year and a half. Now while, as has been intimated, we can afford to part with a great deal of gold, there will be considerable danger of our losing more than we can afford. To guard against such a danger it is the plain duty of the banks and trust companies to cooperate with the Federal Reserve Board in mobilizing gold in time of abundance like the present, and one of the ways for retaining gold certificates in their tills and to pay out national bank notes and Federal reserve bank notes instead. A gold certificate in circulation adds no more to the purchasing power of the community than does a bank note, but a gold certificate in the bank means three or four times as much in potential bank credit, whereas a bank note, which cannot be used as reserve money, contributes nothing whatever to the lending power of the bank.

We of the outlying districts often wonder when the oft repeated promise of fixing the roads will be executed. We wonder if those in charge of town affairs realize the money to pay the taxes depends on the farm produce? On account of the conditions of the roads in the Bailey district, it is almost impossible to sell milk, as men will not risk their teams and trucks over such roads. It is almost equally impossible for the farmers to market their produce as the roads are such that a person is liable to be thrown from his team when it is dark. We are told, this is a free country; the farmers think it is a free country for some to do as they please with the hard-earned money the farmers pay out in taxes.

According to advices from Wheeling, W. Va., an optician of that town has the honor, if it can be termed an honor, of opening the fool wagger season, which soon will be at its height all over the land. It appears that this Wheelingite was so confident of a triumph for the Brooklyn, in the world's baseball championship series, that he made a wager by the terms of which the loser must live on baked beans for a week, with an allowance of one slice of bread at each meal. If the loser had been a Bostonian he would not have balked at such a diet, but to a West Virginian baked beans for a whole week came pretty close to being poison. They might be tolerated for one meal each day in the week, but to sit down to a mess of baked beans for twenty-one consecutive meals is almost enough to drive the unfortunate from "dry" West Virginia to the "wettest" State on the map. No meat, no fish, no oysters—just beans, morning, noon and evening! Hideous thought! And how much more distressing if this misguided optician is a married man, and has to sit at a table and see his wife and children eating all sorts of food while he must confine himself to beans, beans, beans, day in and day out for a week!

But, as previously remarked, this Wheelingite has merely opened the fool wagger season, which will reach its height on November 8, or as soon as the presidential election figures are known to a certainty. Then will be witnessed such familiar spectacles as rolling a peanut with the aid of a footpick, along a prominent thoroughfare; or trundling the other fellow in a wheelbarrow between lines of jeering spectators; or wearing a placard bearing the inscription, in big letters, "I Bet On So-and-So," or some other manifestation of feeble-mindedness. As Puck said: "What fools these mortals be!"

Electricity on the Transatlantic Submarine "Deutschland"

There was little mention made in the public press of the part that electricity played in making possible the plucky journey of the mercantile submarine "Deutschland," from her home port in Germany to Baltimore, a distance of 3800 miles, in sixteen days. Yet without her storage batteries and propelling motors enabling her to navigate beneath the surface, and full equipment of electric winches, lights and wireless, naval engineers agree that the voyage would have been regarded as foolhardy, if not impossible.

During her voyage, most of which was made on the surface, the "Deutschland" was propelled by two crude oil engines. In addition to propelling the craft on the surface these engines were connected to electric generators to keep the storage batteries in the bottom of the boat fully charged. Even while running on the surface the electric current was of importance in lighting the interior, forcing fresh air in the living quarters, and operating the wireless. Electric winches were also used for raising and lowering the anchor and loading cargo and supplies.

When danger threatened and strange ships were sighted the Deutschland was submerged, and it was then that the electrical machinery was depended upon entirely to propel her beneath the water out of the danger zone. On such occasions the oil engines were shut down and a supply of current from the storage batteries used to operate two electric motors attached to propellers. In this way, according to Captain Koenig, the submarine could travel a distance of 100 miles without rising to the surface to recharge the storage cells. On the voyage to America the submarine was submerged for a total distance of 90 miles, most of which was necessary in passing through the closely patrolled North Sea. Her captain stated that on one occasion the boat was submerged to the bottom, and (in submarine phraseology) "went to sleep" for several hours.

GREETING TO TROOPS

Boston, Oct. 22.—Thousands of anxious relatives and friends, including hundreds of mothers and wives, eagerly greeted their boys this morning when the troop trains bearing the "Dandy Fifth" back to Boston arrived after a seven-day trip from El Paso.

The troops paraded this morning and were given a great welcome all along the route. Thousands of people poured into the city last night to be on hand. The regiment is made up of 1258 officers and men, most of whom live in the suburbs of Boston.

This morning all Boston was given a chance to greet the men, who paraded through Boston's streets with their bands playing and colors flying. The mayor reviewed them in front of city hall and the governor and military staff greeted them as they passed the state house.

ATTITUDE OF HUGHES

Candidate Says He Stands For Exclusively American Policy

New York, Oct. 25.—Charles E. Hughes last night told an audience that crowded Schuetzen Park hall in Queens borough that he did not want the support "of anyone who has any interest superior to that of the United States, who would not instantly champion the right and interest of America against any country whatever, who wants immunity for foreign aggression, or who would have the power of this nation held captive to any foreign influence or swayed by alien machinations."

Hughes' declaration was made at the first of three meetings at which he spoke in New York city last night. The other two meetings were held in Harlem and the Bronx.

He declared that his policy will be exclusively American and that he would not tolerate the use of our soil for foreign intrigue, or submit to threats from any quarter.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

Unlikely to Be Reduced by an Embargo on Exports

Washington, Oct. 26.—There will be no regulation of exports or of food prices in this country, barring actual famine or war, except to prevent illegal combinations.

This statement was made by a high administration authority. Asked whether, in view of the high cost of living and the admission that it is caused primarily by the unprecedented exports, regulation of exports and food prices might be possible, this official replied: "Possible, but highly improbable."

Administration officials blame the high cost of living on the war and the resulting demand of Europe for American wheat, flour, meat and goods generally.

They figure that the farmer is economically on top and say that an embargo which will hit the farmer will not be considered.

AN UNUSUAL CATCH

School of Blackfish Expected to Yield $3000 Worth of Oil

Orleans, Mass., Oct. 26.—Three hundred blackfish, the blubber from which is used for the production of whale oil, were captured here by fishermen who surrounded the big school in boats and drove them ashore.

The 300 carcasses, weighing from a half ton to three tons apiece, were hauled by David C. Scull of Provincetown. Scull estimates that he can secure a gallon of whale oil from each head. As the oil is worth about $10 a gallon, Scull expects to net close to $3000 worth of oil from the lot.

GIRLS TO AID RECRUITING

Twelve Advertised For by Army Authorities at San Francisco

San Francisco, Oct. 26.—The United States army authorities here have advertised for twelve women to aid in securing enlistments for the army. The advertisements specify that they must be "attractive, intelligent and industrious," hold out the inducement that here is a chance to "make money and do your country a service," and conclude with the warning, "No tilters need apply."

Many Victims of Gale

Cleveland, Oct. 24.—The death toll of Friday's storm on Lake Erie is now set at fifty-two, as a result of the discovery that the steamer Merida, a 300-foot steel boat bound from Port Williams, Can., to Buffalo is lost and that probably the crew of twenty-five perished.

Long Trip in Airship

New York, Oct. 26.—Lawrence B. Sperry flew from Brant Rock, Mass., to Amityville, L. I., 260 miles, in 225 minutes, without stopping. He carried Robert Fowler as passenger.

Maine Militia Mustered Out

Augusta, Me., Oct. 26.—The Second Maine Infantry, which returned from the Mexican border ten days ago, was mustered out of the federal service yesterday afternoon.

DUCHARME IDENTIFIED

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 26.—Positive identification of Francis DuCharme, held on the charge of murdering little Leona Kozma, as the man who was seen loitering near the home of Lillian Begley in Holyoke, a year ago, on the night before the body of the Begley child was found in the cellar, was made by Patrolman Standen and Dr. Forsler, both of that city.

Standen was almost certain as soon as he had seen DuCharme's photograph that he was the man he had seen near the Begley home, and when he confronted the accused man, he said that he recognized him at once.

The girl's body had not been found when the two men saw DuCharme and he was not questioned at that time.

The Holyoke police asserted last night their confidence that they would establish positively that DuCharme was responsible for the Begley murder.

Much interest has arisen here in the announcement that Chief Kerr of the Melrose police is coming here in an effort to connect DuCharme with the death of Loreta Valentin, who was assaulted and killed near her home last June.

His visit was delayed because he will hold a conference today with Mayor Adams of Melrose. He is expected here within a day or two.

Captain Cullen, chief of detectives, and his men had established positively that at the time of the Begley murder DuCharme was employed near Ambert Natch and that he was in Holyoke twice on or near the date of the murder.

There is a remarkable similarity in the Chicopee, Holyoke and Melrose crimes, and thus far the police have not accounted for DuCharme's time between May 9 and June 6 of this year. The little Walekin girl was killed in Melrose June 1.

HUNTER TAKES OWN LIFE

Had Accidentally Wounded Self and Was Unable to Reach Home

Ashland, Me., Oct. 26.—The bullet that Arthur Rufford, a youthful hunter, deliberately took his own life after he had shot himself accidentally, was expressed when his body was found by his father in a field at the rear of his farm.

The location of the wounds indicated that the young man received the contents of the

Glenwoods are Brim Full of Good Things

The Glenwood Balanced Baking Damper is far ahead of any other—it is as positive as the turning of a railroad switch—open to start the fire, closed to bake—just this one damper for kindling or baking and heat of all, it can't warp or stick.

The Glenwood Revolving Coal Grate is easy to shake at all times, and simply fine for removing clinkers. It is triangular in shape, with three different angles for wear.

The Ash Pan rests on a roller bearing frame—just open door and it rolls out at the slightest touch, neat and clean.

The Glenwood Shelf Under Oven Door is not stationary—it automatically raises and lowers as oven door is opened or closed. It is always level with oven bottom—a great convenience when basting meats or removing food.

The Glenwood Sectional Top is interchangeable—cross pieces can not warp—a wash boiler can be placed at the back as well as in front for quick heating, leaving the front holes free for cooking.

Glenwood Iron is smooth and perfect—the easiest of any to clean—a real delight to the most exacting housekeeper. Get one and you'll be glad ever after.

Phillips Team Lost

The Phillips Academy football team met a stiff proposition in the Dartmouth Freshman team last Saturday afternoon and lost the game by the score of 20 to 0. The visitors had a strong, fast team and their backfield men were among the best seen here in years. The Academy team put up a good defensive game but in the aggressive they were weak. The feature of the game was the drop-kick from the 45-yard line by Robertson, the big left tackle, who was a former Worcester Academy star.

In Memory of John Saunders

The voice that stirred the patriot breast
Is heard no more;
The soul that all its kindred blessed
Has gone before.
Has gone before.
Departed as the sun at close of day
From its frail counterpart of mortal clay
To rend the misty, folding shroud of grey
On Life's bleak shore.

JOHN SAUNDERS, youth's unfailing friend,
His treasure gave
From every way with woe and end
Young feet to save.
His manifold spirit void of pompous pride
Moved but to aid the heart by sorrow tried
A conqueror of Self he stood beside
The open grave.

New Hope aloft on flashing wing
Seeks heaven's gate;
The faith he taught moves us to sing
Our gladness great;
Though still on earth we journey labour-worn,
Cheered by the wish in death's dread presence born
Upward we'll gaze as open each golden morn
And praying wait.

There is a Real Difference

Cream of tartar, derived from grapes, is used in Royal Baking Powder because it is the best and most healthful ingredient known for the purpose.

Phosphate and alum, which are derived from mineral sources, are used in some baking powders, instead of cream of tartar, because they are cheaper.

If you have been induced to use baking powders made from alum or phosphate, use Royal Baking Powder instead. You will be pleased with the results and the difference in the quality of the food.

REPUBLICAN RALLY

Mr. Rogers dwelt at considerable length on the high cost of living. He showed substantial figures in proof of his claims that much of the advance in prices was due to the tariff bill that was enacted under a Democratic Congress and that the party now in favor was absolutely responsible for the jump in prices of necessities of life.

Mr. Rogers dwelt on the situation in Mexico and threw much light on the matter in reference to the embargo which was placed on American ammunition by President Taft and later removed by President Wilson.

Hon. John N. Cole was the next speaker and he held his audience for some time with a fine analysis of the Democratic party in its service to the state and nation. He illustrated his opening remarks by taking a cartoon from a morning paper showing the British boy eating cake while the American boy found an empty cupboard. Mr. Cole then dwelt for some time on the reasons of the excessive price of coal. He contended that this was due to the fact that all available ships are now being used to convey supplies to and from factories that are overwhelmed with war orders. He spoke freely of the extravagancies of the Democratic party in their work throughout the southern states, where he said large sums of money were wasted on developments which were unnecessary. These are built with New England money.

Mr. Cole then spoke of the State finances in which he maintained that much money had been saved under the direction of Governor McCall and urged his re-election on November 7. He said that it was service to the citizens of this kind that the Republican party had always maintained and promised that if returned to power this same service would continue.

The last speaker was Charles E. Burbank of Bridgewater, a former Progressive and now a staunch Republican. He told the audience of his desertion of the Republican ranks for the newer party and that he had come back to the fold after a careful analysis of the planks and purposes of the G. O. P. He said that the place for all former Progressives was within the ranks of the Republican party, where much more could be accomplished toward the end for which the members of the third party were fighting.

He paid high tribute to the worth of Governor McCall who had saved thousands of dollars for the tax payers of the commonwealth and asked all the voters to see the stay-at-homes and urge them to go to the polls on election day.

Hallowe'en Tea

A very pretty Hallowe'en Tea was given at the Rose Cottage Tea Room, Wednesday afternoon. The decorations were appropriate for the occasion and a special tea was served. A large number of people attended.

There will be further special teas later on, according to the holidays of the year.

Grange News

The Grange meeting held Tuesday evening in the Grange hall was well attended, there being one hundred Andover Grangers present, and sixty visitors from Methuen, North Andover, West Buxford, Haverhill, and one New Hampshire Grange. The meeting was observed as visitors' night and the entertainment was in charge of Methuen Grange and was in the form of Olympic Games. The first was a horse race, which consisted of three Grangers from Methuen and three from Andover, cutting a long strip of narrow cloth. This was won by Edith Dunnells of Andover, who carried off the blue ribbon.

Next, the light eight race, which was lighting a candle and carrying it across the hall with one hand, lighting another from it and carrying it back, going around a chair each time. This was won by Mrs. Duff and Sydney Coburn of Methuen and the prize was a match.

Next a marathon race was run, which consisted of taking an orange from one table on a silver knife, and carrying it across the hall and laying it down upon another table without touching the hand to the orange. This was won by Fred Triche of Lawrence, and he was presented with a dummy watch. The relay race consisted of three couples: the lady holding a needle and the gentleman threading it, both using only one hand. Three couples from Methuen and Andover took part in this and it was won by Mrs. George Ward, and Phillip Moor, of the Parish. The prize was a pair of doll's shoes. The last on the program was a flight or oratory, with just one minute to think of what one was going to say. Mrs. John Morrill and Mr. Herbert Lewis of the Andover Grange went high as orators, but Mrs. Morrill won and was presented with a purse of one cent. After the entertainment a bountiful supper was served by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Swanton, Mr. and Mrs. Burke Thornton, and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Holt.

Next Tuesday evening a special meeting of the Grange will be held for the purpose of conferring the first and second degrees upon eighteen candidates.

A sewing meeting by the Ladies' Club of the Grange will be held at the home of Mrs. Louis Dane, in Andover, next Wednesday.

There are rumors of a play which will be presented by the Grangers in the town hall under the direction of Mrs. Hubert Mayo in the near future.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Smith went to the scene and made an investigation. The chief notified the police in both Londonderry and Wilson and requested them to notify the men's relatives.

The remains of the victims were taken to their late homes on Thursday for interment.

Boy Scout Notes

Nearly 100 per cent of the boys enrolled were in attendance this week at the regular meetings. The new headquarters at the Guild have proven an added factor in making the meetings interesting and the use of the gym this week has made possible the playing of some Scout games which could not be enjoyed before. The boys are keenly interested in trying for the second-class tests, while some are trying for the first-class tests.

Tomorrow the boys have been asked by The Village Improvement Society to make more sightly the district around the public dump on High street. So armed with an abundance of good spirits and the desire to do something for the town, the boys will leave the headquarters at 2 o'clock and march in a body to the place, in charge of Senior Patrol Leader Henry Carse. Senior Patrol Leaders Swenson, Bigelow, Dalton and Partridge will assist in directing the work.

An important meeting of the Senior Patrol Leaders is called for Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Thursday afternoon a squad from each troop took instructions from M. E. Peck, an instructor at Phillips, in setting-up exercises.

The next opportunity for passing tests will be given one week from today. All Scouts should get in their applications as soon as possible. Examinations in tenderfoot, second and first-class requirements will be held at this time. The board will meet at 7 o'clock.

An open meeting will be held Tuesday evening, at which all Scouts who wish may attend. Games and amusements will be enjoyed, and it is surmised by some that "ghosts" and other Hallowe'en stunts will be on the program. The fun will commence at 7 o'clock sharp.

San Felice Standard to Be

Maintained, Say Makers

All Dealers Now Sell Famous Cigars at 5c Straight. In Effect today.

Owing to the greatly increased cost of quality tobaccos, in fact everything pertaining to high grade cigars, the makers of the San Felice cigar, The Deisel-Wemmer Company, have advanced the selling price to the Jobbers and Dealers, and henceforth this cigar will positively be sold to the consumer at 5 cents straight instead of six for a quarter as previously.

The SAN FELICE is national in its scope and character, having justly attained this eminence through its unexcelled excellence. To maintain this unequalled standard of quality, the advance in question is absolutely unavoidable. The generous support of all men using quality cigars is earnestly desired.
